I had a good conversation with Rich Baird this morning. I explained that although I was interested in the job, there are a number of reasons (not wanting to leave the firm and familial constraints) that made it impractical for me to do so. He suggested that I give it some additional consideration and if, upon reflection, I could say that there was a glimmer of hope that I would take the job, then I should at least take the next step of meeting the Governor, Lt. Governor and the rest of the team. We agreed to get back in touch next week. He also mentioned that irrespective of whether I take the job, as far as he's concerned, he liked our presentation and is pulling for us to represent the city. I then reiterated that even if I did not take the EM position, I and the firm are committed to working in lockstep with the city and I would be more than willing to undertake any role in this respect.
